Program Outcomes 2017-18

Learning outcomes are very essential component of the college vision, purpose, and desired long-term objectives of its perspective plan. A mechanism has been developed to successfully convey programme and course outcomes through a variety of channels, including the college website, prospectus, the principal's inaugural address to students during various activities. The usual means of evaluating students—tests, assignments, quizzes, classroom presentations, participatory discussions, etc.—are used on a regular basis. For the purpose of developing students' abilities and providing them exposure with technical advancements, the career counselling cell arranges guest lectures and workshops. The college magazine's comprehensive report section and student column provide some insight into the outcomes of the programmes, courses, and other activities that were planned throughout the semester.
